Aquarion Announces 2014 Awards for Environmental Excellence

BRIDGEPORT, CONN. – January 29, 2014 – The Aquarion Water Company is again seeking adults, students, small and large businesses, and non-profits whose volunteer efforts have protected or improved Connecticut’s natural resources – its air, water, soils or plant and wildlife communities.

For the fourth year, the company will name winners of its Aquarion Environmental Champion Awards in five categories: Adult, Youth, Small Business, Large Business and Non-Profit Organization. Nominations can be made for efforts to protect or improve Connecticut’s natural resources.

“Every day volunteers make outstanding contributions to Connecticut’s environmental health,” said Charles V. Firlotte, President and CEO of Aquarion Water Company. “The initiative, energy and resourcefulness of these volunteers benefits people throughout Connecticut and beyond, in terms of water quality, wildlife habitat, local food sources, outdoor recreation and many other goals. We’re delighted to honor the people, companies and non-profit organizations behind these worthy efforts.”

Aquarion will honor winners on June 7, 2014 at a major event to be held at Connecticut’s Beardsley Zoo in Bridgeport. Participating in the awards ceremony will be U.S. Senator Richard Blumenthal. Awards will include a $1000 award for the student winner and $2500 contributions to environmental non-profit organizations selected by the other winners.

The deadline for nominations is May 7, 2014. Self-nominations and renominations are welcome. More information is available at www.aquarionwater.com and www.facebook.com/aquarionwater.
